In it with Them

Sitting around the table, having dinner together on a Thursday evening, we shared about the highs and lows of our days. One of the ladies shared about a frustrating time she had trying to get something accomplished at Penndot. Our daughter, Taylor, who enjoys interacting with the "Dream House girls" and always has lots of questions, asked about the unfortunate events of the morning. When I also responded to her question with something, Taylor asked me how I knew the details. "Because she was there with me," she told Taylor.

I was there with her in that frustrating moment. She wasn't alone.

Paint Night!

And as I sat back for a moment, I pondered the reality that the Dream House doesn't exist to neatly give them all the pieces to put their lives together or to hold their hand so that they never fall down. Rather, we are here to offer a hand to hold in the midst of the challenges of life. To be ready to help them get back up when they do fall down.

We are in it with them.

(PS: A happy update to the frustrating trip to Penndot... just last week that young lady passed her drivers test and is now a licensed driver! And we were there to help teach and prepare her for the test so she passed it the first time!)

We are looking forward to blessings our participants at Christmas!
